Study shows acid rain affecting drinking water

Shoreline property owners who draw their drinking water from area lakes are facing a new hazard as a result of acid rain. The problem of lead and copper contamination of drinking water was revealed in a study prepared by Health and Welfare Canada and released last week.

According to the study, water with elevated acid level causes increased contamination from lead solder and copper pipes. The metals leach from the pipes, especially when it is allowed to stand for any length of time, for example overnight or between visits to the cottage. The water in pipes investigated by the federal department contained up to ten times the acceptable levels of lead and copper set by the agency. The tests were carried out after the water had stood for ten days.

Dr. Peter Toft, the chief of monitoring and criteria standards for the bureau of hazardous chemicals in Ottawa, told The Times Tuesday that the best remedy for the situation was for residents to flush out their lines before drawing water to drink. "I would suggest they allow the water to run for a minute or so each morning to clear the pipes of the water which has been standing overnight," Dr. Toft suggested. "I own a cottage and when we visit it, the flushing of the system is a common practice. I wouldn't drink first-draw water." The spokesman explained that the flushing helps to rid the system of any bacterial growth as well as the metal contamination.

He recommended the practice, even for those who are connected to municipal water systems. "We have found that most people will let the water run, at least until it turns cold, before taking a drink. The colder temperatures indicate the water has been in the pipes which are buried underground as opposed to the ones in the house where the water has remained at room temperature. It is a good practice in either case."

He said there was little concern for contamination, by heavy metals, of municipal water systems. He pointed out the quality of municipality supplies water is monitored and treated where necessary. Private water systems generally are not treated.

The federal spokesman also noted that tests were carried out on systems which relied on lakes for the water supply. "I would suppose that water taken from wells would not have the same problem," he commented, but added that no tests were carried out on well water.

The federal study was carried out in the late summer of 1981 at three lakes in the Baysville area. Water systems on Lake of Bays, Heeney and Dickie lakes were tested by the federal agency. According to a report from the Ontario Ministry of Environment, Heeney and Dickie lakes were rated as being extremely sensitive to heavy acid rain loading while Lake of Bays was moderately sensitive.

Toft said that anyone who drank water from a system which hadn't been flushed would receive a fairly high dose of the contamination. He also suggested that permanent shoreline residents who rely on lakes for their drinking water supplies, should exercise extreme care in ensuring their water systems are flushed every morning or after an extended period of non-use.

The spokesman said the bureau had not tested the water which was taken from plastic of PVC pipes. He said these pipes might have a reaction in relation to the chemicals used to make the pipes, but tests have not been carried out. He said the use of PVC pipes might offer an alternative to copper pipes.

A spokesman for Health and Welfare Canada said the situation was not "life threatening" but posed a potential long-term hazard of which shoreline residents should be made aware.

When serious concern over the impact of acid rain was raised three years ago, the possible contamination of drinking water was mentioned as one of the concerns. However, this appears to be the first study to conclusively show a link between the phenomenon and health, with regard to drinking water.

The federal department has indicated that booklets outlining water quality guidelines, including the concerns connected with acid rain, will be published soon.

Toft said that additional studies will be carried out next year to determine the areas which could be affected.

Students at HHSS had an opportunity to learn about many different professions Wednesday morning during the Career Week open house in the gymnasium. A demonstration of modern surveying techniques attracted a large crowd of interested students during the morning. Some thirty professions were represented.

Elliott objects to comments by Dysart reeve on concerts

Comments made by Dysart Reeve Murray Fearrey concerning damage to property as a result of rock concerts in Minden have raised the ire of the chairman of the Minden Recreation Committee, Dean Elliott.

Fearrey was quoted in last week's edition of the Haliburton County Echo as saying that damage to public property in Minden provided a good reason for his municipality to enact controls on similar events in Dysart.

The municipal council, at its November 15 meeting enacted a comprehensive by-law which would all but stop concerts or events by profit-making organizations from being held in the municipality. The by-law includes provisions for a $500 licence, a deposit of funds to cover the cost of extra police protection, a security bond to cover liability and property damage and that a health approval must be obtained before any event is staged.

The by-law exempts non-profit organizations from the provisions.

Dean Elliott said he was amused that Minden had been used as an example of what is wrong with such gatherings. He noted that in the past two years since he has headed the Recreation Committee there have been no reports of property damage following or before a rock concert. "In those two years there has been no damage to municipally owned property," Elliott commented. "In some cases those who rent the arena for 'normal' dances leave a greater mess behind than we find after a rock concert."

Elliott pointed out that no one from the Dysart council had contacted his organization to ascertain if the events had resulted in damage or problems. He noted that three years ago a confrontation had taken place in the parking lot of the arena between police and some individuals attending a rock concert at the time. A window in a police car had been broken by a thrown beer bottle. He said that appears to have been the last incident of any serious consequence with regard to rock concerts. "Following the last event at the Minden arena the clean-up staff found 14 empty beer bottles in the building. I think that is an indication of how closely the events are being monitored."

Elliott noted that the committee's agreement with the Toronto promoter of the rock concerts calls for him to provide the necessary inside security. He is also responsible for any damages to the building.

"Where does our responsibility end outside the arena?" Elliott asked.

"We have had a happy and pleasant relationship with the promoter, Lawrence Sherman, and we hope it will continue," the chairman of the Recreation Committee added.

Fearrey said his reference during the meeting November 15 was to the police car. He said he was unaware of any other property damage which had occurred. He did object, however, to the cost of heavy policing of the concerts noting that some areas of the county are often underprotected while the OPP manpower is concentrated in Minden. Fearrey suggested that the promoter should bear some of the cost of the additional policing costs, including the hiring of off-duty officers to add to the force.

Fearrey said he was also concerned about the kind of individual who is attracted to the rock concerts. He said that members of motor cycle gangs are often part of the audience and their presence could create a volatile element that could result in problems.

Provisional bill delayed

The state of the Ontario economy and measures to correct it may result in legislation to change the status of Haliburton County being delayed until the spring.

That was the word brought to the November 17 meeting of county council by the county clerk Win Lahay. She told the meeting that while the legislation is ready to be introduced, economic measures and the subsequent debate at Queen's Park could mean that the legislation to drop the provisional status from the county, could be held over until next year. The council, which has approved all aspects of the change, had expected the legislation to be endorsed this fall.

Budget chairman, Stanhope Reeve Jim Harrison, told the meeting that the bill had received the approval of the Cabinet and prior to the most recent delay, it was expected it would be introduced in late November or early December.

Hilda Harrison, left, and Freda Hulbig of the United Church Women were two of many volunteers who helped prepare and serve a soup and sandwich luncheon at the church hall on Friday. The luncheon and bazaar attracted a large number of people who enjoyed the delicious meal.

Man found guilty of attempted murder

A shooting in Dysart resulted in a severely injured right hand for one man and a Supreme Court verdict of guilty for the other man.

Leonard Harold Stamp, 33, of Guilford township, was found guilty of attempted murder and use of a firearm while committing an indictable offence in a trial lasting from November 2 to November 9.

On November 4, 1981, as the result of a feud, Stamp entered a residence on Harburn Road in Dysart township with a 12 gauge shotgun. He fired and the shot hit Mervyn Morris Roberts, 52, of West Hill, Ontario. Roberts suffered injuries to his chest and severe injuries to his right hand.

Stamp is to be sentenced on November 29.

The investigation was conducted by P.C. Mike Legge assisted by personnel from Number 8 District Headquarters in Peterborough.

Fraud charges

Police have laid fraud charges against a Monmouth insurance agent and an Eagle Lake cottager following two result of allegations concerning his Monmouth Insurance Agency Ltd. Claims that insurance separate investigations.

Edward Lewis Hunter, 32, of Gooderham was charged with three counts of fraud and three counts of theft as the premiums of $22,706 were not forwarded to the insurance companies were made.

In occurrences like this, where individuals pay an agent, whether or not the payment is forwarded to the insurance companies, the clients are considered insured by the insurance companies concerned.

Investigation is by P.C. Al Bibby.

The other case of fraud has resulted in the conviction of William Byron Cooper, 47, of Toronto.

Cooper was sentenced to seven months in jail and ordered to repay $17,350.

The trial in Lindsay revealed that Cooper built his cottage in 1975 and then sold it at an inflated price in 1977 to a non-existent buyer. The "buyer" would take responsibility of the $24,000 original mortgage and Cooper would be the beneficiary of a $22,500 second mortgage paid by the "purchaser." Cooper sold the second mortgage and received the cash.

The ruse was discovered when payments on both mortgages ceased.

Investigated by P.C. Al Bibby and Detective Sergeant Don Wheeler of the OPP Anti-Rackets Branch in Toronto.

Galway reduces schedule

The municipal council in the townships of Galway-Cavendish is attempting to save money by reducing the number of meetings of the council during the first four months of the year. The experiment will be tried between January and April of 1983.

The council now meets twice a month at the municipal office in Kinmount. The clerk-treasurer for the municipality, Joan from their residence within the township.

"We rely a great deal on the council committees to consider many of the problems," the clerk pointed out. "These committees, which include council members and volunteers from the community, will prepare reports for the council. This has reduced greatly the time spent in considering matters."

The clerk said that the committee system had helped to reduce council's meeting time. "Where once we would meet all day, the meetings are now often complete by 1 p.m. The council feels it would rather have one long meeting a month than two shorter ones." The single meeting will be held the last Saturday of each month.

It is expected that the municipality will save up to $200 in reduced payments to councillors for attending meetings. The councillors will continue to attend the committee meetings during the month for which they are paid $39 plus travel allowance.

The clerk pointed out that the amount of business dealt with by the council falls off in the early part of the year and it is hoped that all municipal business can be taken care of in one sitting. "We will be assessing the situation to ensure the efficiency of the municipality isn't being hurt by the new system," the clerk said. She pointed out a separate meeting will be held in the spring to set the township's budget.

his council would be considering a by-law in the near future to control exotic dancers such as strippers. He said the "entertainment" will soon be tried in the county and he wants his municipality's position clear before it happens. The reeve noted that communities in surrounding counties now have strippers appearing. "It is only a matter of time before it happens here," he concluded.

BIA receives grant

The Minden Business Improvement Area (BIA) has received approval to hire three individuals during the winter months under a federal make-work project. Confirmation of the acceptance was received last week by BIA board of director member Stuart Brandon.

The association was awarded a grant of $14,700 to cover the employment of three individuals over a 20 week period starting in early December. The BIA had applied for a grant of over $40,000. Brandon was nonetheless pleased with the amount received. "While we will not be able to carry out all the work we had intended, the money will be put to good use in the downtown area," he commented. He noted that the letter from Employment and Immigration announcing the grant indicated that, should additional funds be made available, the association will be eligible for another $10,390, to cover the cost of another employee for 44 weeks.

The application for the grant had outlined a number of projects including street and sidewalk upgrading, the construction of planters, benches and other street furnishings and improvements for the two main entrances to the community.

The funding agency indicated that the street work should be handled through the municipality, but that the other work was eligible for funding through the local business organization.

Work is expected to begin in early December. Those employees hired for the posts must be registered with the Canada Manpower Outreach office in Haliburton.

The funding for the BIA project was made available through the Canada Community Development Project of Canada Manpower.

New program

Haliburton County Warden Ron Gambell has urged area municipalities to take advantage of a new make-work project announced last week. Known as NEED (New Economical Economy Development), the program is intended to employ those whose UIC benefits have expired or who are now on welfare.

The Warden said this part of the country often misses out on these programs because the municipalities fail to make application for the funds. "We have to go after the grants if we want to benefit from them," he commented. "It is no use complaining after the program is over."

He said that details of the new funding is just starting to emerge, but he said municipalities must demonstrate need to take advantage of the money. He said the Outreach office in Haliburton should have the details for those interested in applying. Chris Moore of the Canada Manpower office in Peterborough is the regional coordinator.

Hal Haniford, director of Kilcoo Camp, was the featured speaker at the banquet marking the end of Career Week. Haniford challenged the students to live their lives to the fullest. $23,750 paid to former employee

The Hyland Crest Board of Management has agreed to an out of court settlement with Phyllis Kennedy, the nursing supervisor who was dismissed six months ago. Mrs. Kennedy had brought an action against the county run home following her firing, claiming that she was wrongfully dismissed.

The agreement between the two parties was reached last week and announced in a press release issued by the home's board of management Monday.

In the agreement, the county agreed to pay Kennedy $23,750. The settlement is based on compensation for six months lost wages, costs related to moving from Minden and the sale of property and legal fees.

Chairman of the board of management, Dysart Reeve Murray Fearrey, said the county had spent an estimated $4,000 on legal fees in responding to the initial suit.

The press release noted the home had found itself, "in an adverse bargaining position based on a lack of defined written home policy with documented support evidence." Fearrey said that a policy has now been created to cover the operation of the home's employees. This policy includes the maintenance of records on employees.

"The Committee of Management believes in the principles that action was taken on," the press release states, "and would take similar action, only this time with the benefit of a written home policy."

Fearrey noted that the home found itself in an untenable position with regard to the court action. He said the cost of the lengthy battle could be very high, exceeding the settlement agreed to by both parties. Taking this into consideration, the board felt the best course was to agree to the settlement.

"The committee feels the decision to settle out of court was justified...and in the best interests of the taxpayers of the county," the press release concluded.

The threat grows

The impact of acid rain on the lives of Haliburton Highlands property owners moved another step up the ladder last week. A federal report has been released showing that acidic lake water, drawn through lead soldered, copper pipes, can dissolve enough of the metals to pose a potential health hazard.

Health and Welfare Canada's bureau of chemical hazards feels the situation in the Muskoka-Haliburton area is serious enough to warrant issuing a warning. They suggest that flushing out the water system each morning will help eliminate the problem as the leaching of the metals takes place when the water stands in the pipes overnight or longer. The suggestion could help alleviate the immediate problem of the unsafe water but it still leaves many questions unanswered.

Why should anyone visiting or living in Muskoka or the Haliburton Highlands, areas which pride themselves in the natural beauty, have to take such precautions? How can Inco, Ontario Hydro, and other polluters on both sides of the border foul our water, making it potentially harmful to drink, without having to account for their action? Why is it the federal and provincial governments seem willing to accept the platitudes of the polluters rather than demanding actions to remedy the situation?

When the problem of acid rain first surfaced the main area of concern centered on the fisheries. Like an ever expanding ripple in a pool the concern spread to aquatic plants, tree growth and now human health. How much longer will we allow our environment to be assaulted by acid rain? How many more health hazards will polluters and governments rain down on us before something is done? How long will the government allow our economy to be eroded and the health of residents to be threatened?

The stakes in the acid rain poker game took a quantum leap last week. No longer is it just fish and trees that are threatened, but human health as well. It is time for the people to let the politicians and polluters know they have had enough.

Frost fence

The apartment shuffle

- by John Eakins, M.P.P. -

A temporary 5 per cent limit on rent increases claimed for higher financing costs arising from a change of ownership has been imposed by the Ontario Government, although owners of such properties would still be entitled to the automatic annual 6 per cent increase allowed under the province's rent control laws. The Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations has also announced an increase in the length of time landlords can be required by the provincial Residential Tenancy Commission to phase in higher rents caused by financing costs when a building is sold. If a building is sold twice within three years, the new owner will have to wait at least three more years before recovering any of the refinancing costs involved in the second sale.

Events have been moving very quickly in connection with the controversial Cadillac - Fairview - Greymac - Kilderkin - Saudi Arabian sale.

The Residential Tenancy Commission has set up a special team to deal with all rent hike applications for the 11,000 former Cadillac - Fairview units, in the hope of ensuring that there is no confusion or duplication. The nine member team, including three commissioners and six support staff is being set up in Toronto, as one of a number of proposals following the controversial triple sale which ended in the purchase of the units by a consortium, reported to be Saudi Arabian, represented by a series of numbered companies.

A Royal Commission, headed by lawyer Stuart Thom, will examine all aspects of Ontario's rent control legislation in effect since 1976. A second inquiry will investigate the role of Greymac Trust Co., Crown Trust Co., and Seaway Trust Co. which provided mortgages for the sale of the apartments.

The Minister rejected calls for a broader investigation with the power to subpoena witnesses and information, saying such an inquiry would result in a "witch hunt" of private companies whose privacy is protected under law. He said he would take further action only if there were reasonable and probable grounds to suspect wrongdoing.

Landlords will still be able to apply for additional rent increases based on other factors such as increased operating costs or major improvements.

Legislation will soon be introduced which will mean that tenants of apartment buildings sold after October 31 will face lower rent increases than they might otherwise have done. It will apply to applications for a rent increase between the start of this month and the end of next year.

Liberal Leader David Peterson has charged that the government is refusing to investigate all aspects of the controversial Cadillac - Fairview sale because it has something to hide. "I don't have much faith in their objective view of these transactions" he said. "Who knows what they know or don't know?" There is apparently, he said, evidence to suggest that the principals involved in the three way sale may not have been dealing at arm's length (the buyers and sellers may have shared financial

- Federation of Ontario Naturalists

We Canadians are a hardy race; cold and snow are no strangers. So it would seem that we should need little teaching in the art of surviving a Canadian winter. Yet every year, some of us will be found frozen to death in stalled cars or lost in a winter blizzard, and many more will suffer the effects of frostbite and exposure. Many of these cases are unnecessary, so here's a few reminders on preparing yourself again for winter.

The most important preparation of course is clothing, but for active outdoor sports you must look at more than simply warmth. Since the greatest danger lies in dampness, often created by sweating, make sure that your winter clothing is in layers, so that you can easily remove clothes as necessary to prevent getting steamed up while working. For warmth under all conditions, even when wet, nothing beats old fashioned wool. And don't forget to cover your head, since so much of your body heat is radiated through its surface.

If you travel outside cities in winter, you should also prepare your car for a blizzard. If you become stranded, an emergency kit with matches, candles, warm clothing and sleeping bags, and a shovel could make the difference between life and death. If you travel frequently a box of high-energy foods and a small stove are also essential, along with booster cables, a tow rope, and an axe or saw for firewood.

What should you do if you are stuck, and a friendly farmhouse is not close at hand?

Most experts advise you to stay with your car, but Roderick Rieve, writing in Manitoba Nature, notes that the steel frame of a stalled car can quickly drain away the heat from your body. If it looks like you will be there for more than a few hours, he suggests that you find a sheltered spot in the trees nearby, and build yourself a quin-zhee. A quin-zhee, or snow house, is easily constructed by heaping up a pile of loose snow about 1 1/2 metres high. After the snow has "set" for 45 minutes, a hollow can be excavated into its core, leaving only an entrance hole on the sheltered side. Since a snow house offers superb insulation, its interior can draw on the relative warmth of the unfrozen ground below. With warm clothes, sleeping bags, and a candle, you may not be comfortable, but at least you will be able to survive just about the worst that nature can dish out in winter weather.

Mime troupe delights audience

A dark haired man pops out of the wings of the stage, precisely places a stool, perches comfortably on the stool after a number of minute adjustments and proceeds to play a set of imaginary drums, spitting out the snare, tom and cymbal sounds.

A second member appears. He brings out his imaginary bass and caresses its non-existent neck eliciting the heavy bass line from deep inside his body. The two set up the rhythm section and then the lead singer prances his way across the stage and starts wailing away. His gyrations would provoke envy from Mick Jagger except for the slight exaggeration which draws laughter from the audience. The mockery continues until the singer experiences difficulty with his microphone. He struts back to the banks of amps, makes one of those mysterious alterations every member of every rock band makes and jumps back expecting to continue. The mike trouble proves too much and so the guitar is brought out and played in top heavy metal style.

The trio is not a rock band which lost its equipment and stuck to the old stage adage "the show must go on". They are the Arete mime troupe treating audiences at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School with their interpretation of contemporary mime.

The troupe (Arete is a Greek word meaning search for excellence) develop and perform a different mime than that of the traditional, mute white faced man. Sounds, props and other disciplines such as tumbling and juggling are incorporated into the presentation to good effect.

"Sounds and props are justified if they are explored to the point they support rather than detract from what is being done," said Kevin McKendrick of the ensemble.

Kevin, Don Spino and Randy Birch are the three stage members of the troupe. "We started seven years ago after we all studied together. We put the company together to continue the work we started in school," said Kevin.

They are based in Calgary and since their formation have toured Canada "a couple of times" and travelled to Europe and the Middle East to entertain Canadian Armed Forces personnel.

The group is excited by the recent addition of their behind the scenes compatriot, manager Jay Blue. "The position was open and I filled it," said Jay. She has known Arete's members for years and so was a natural to take the managing job.

Jay is the behind the scenes person who helps ensure a successful performance. "I handle the technical end of the show. I've been out front a few times in the past but I prefer being backstage," she said.

The show presented November 17 consisted of about 15 pieces, one third of the group's repertoire. "Samurai in the night forest" is a tongue in cheek tribute to the myriad martial arts films. "A day in the park" could have been taken right out of a slapstick silent film with wistful Chaplinesque overtones. "A visit to the fortune teller" employs swiss masks, eliminating facial expression and forcing the mimist to use less precise body movement to convey the story. In "Bits and pieces" they take simple mime exercises and arrange them in an original manner. The evening closed with "Zam-bonies" a circus skit which involves juggling and tumbling. The three characters owe much to the Marx brothers' portrayals.

All the company's skits are loaded with the energy essential for full enjoyment of a show. The night was an unqualified success.

The four take their show to Barrie, Lakefield, Detroit (where Randy Birch will be married) and Brock University before taking time off for Christmas. In that time, McKendrick says, "hopefully we can provide a good time to take your mind off the mortgage."

The show was the first in a series of three to be presented by the Guild of Fine Arts concert committee. The next program is scheduled for February 8 when Hagood Hardy will entertain.

New Lutterworth by law follows a long and tortuous route

Lutterworth council has agreed to another effort to find common ground with the Ministry of Natural Resources (MNR) on the controversial environmental protection and hazard land zoning issue. The matter was raised at the November 18 council meeting.

Council received a letter from Minister of Natural Resources Alan Pope urging them to reconsider the decision to delete the provisions for environmental protection and hazard land zoning due to prohibitive costs from the revised zoning by-law.

"It is unfortunate that council has decided not to include provisions in the by-law that would minimize the risk of loss of life and property damage related to flooding for future residents," wrote Pope.

Land designated hazard land is subject to flooding. The zoning protects this land from development or major landscape alterations. Provincial policy has placed a blanket hazard zoning system across the province which Lutterworth council feels is irrelevant to the township's circumstances. The terrain is considerably different than that found in Southern Ontario where such zoning would be beneficial, the council has argued.

Pope's concern and the highly unusual step he has taken has encouraged council to seek a meeting with the minister to try to reach a compromise.

The issue began with the township's desire to update their unwieldy 1972 zoning by-law. The municipal planner, John McDermott, suggested a completely new by-law after attempts to amend the old one became overly complicated. He informed council that 75% funding, based on the estimate of the by-law's cost, was available from the Ministry of Housing. The township applied for and received the grant but had to receive the Ministry of Housing's approval of the rough draft.

The council was not given any indication of the extent of the new zoning provisions before the by-law's rough draft was submitted. The municipal planner was asked by the ministry to consider and briefly comment on a series of issues in which the zoning was mentioned. The requested maps revealed flood areas were prepared using the customarily accepted aerial photographs and McDermott automatically included clauses in that version of the by-law for the relief of property to upgrade it out of hazard land zoning.

This was done to protect landowners and provide a better opportunity for the township to sell hazard zoned land. Changing watercourses or adding fill are examples of methods used to upgrade property. MNR rejected the draft and requested a meeting with council to discuss the matter.

The meeting was arranged for June 1981 and was attended by council, McDermott and MNR's representative regional planner Warren Evershed.

In a manner described by Lutterworth clerk Wayne Hughes as "abrasive and dictatorial", Evershed said the relief clauses were unacceptable to the ministry. He called the map "suspect" because all shoreline was not marked as flood prone.

"He made it quite clear they would not compromise," said Hughes.

After Evershed's presentation, council directed the planner to delete the hazard land zoning altogether as there were no avenues open for relief.

The by-law was finalized and circulated in November and December 1981. The by-law was lodged with the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) in January 1982 for final approval but a hearing date was delayed to consider another meeting with the MNR.

The ministry sent a different representative, Brian O'Donoghue who agreed after lengthy discussion to review the situation.

K K Irizawa, MNR's Algonquin regional director replied in June 1982 and agreed the ministry could work with the Lutterworth proposals with a few minor changes.

Council discussed the letter in July 1982 and decided, because of mounting costs (costs have exceeded the initial estimate by over $10,000 and are the township's responsibility), they would take the by-law to the OMB as outlined when circulated.

The ministry is making a last ditch attempt to come to terms with the council. Council agreed to attempt to meet MNR minister Alan Pope before asking for a hearing from the OMB. If the meeting is not forthcoming the township will likely try to gain OMB acceptance without MNR's assent.

from the chamber

by Bob Stinson

When should a businessman ask for help from the many sources now available? When there is no place to turn and they have exhausted all other possibilities? Certainly not, for it is then often too late for anything to work, let alone government assistance.

In our county we have an Economic Development Commission and that organization retains John Fleming as an advisor to meet with local businessmen when requested to suggest various directions they may look for assistance. The Federal Business Development Bank as well as loaning money will provide advice through their CASE counselling program at a very nominal fee. The Ministry of Tourism and Recreation consultant is also available to meet with tourism-related businesses to provide free consulting services on matters varying from finances to front office management.

All of these avenues of assistance can be of far more help before you are in trouble, when there are more options open. If you are simply contemplating a business, or a change in the one you have it is wise to take advantage of the help that is available. A call to the Chamber office, at 286-1760, will put you in touch with any of the above.

There are also great numbers of publications which are available simply for the asking. The Federal Business Development Bank has a large number in the series "Minding Your Own Business" that cover such topics as Managing Your Cash, Your Current Assets, Your Fixed Assets, Forecasting for New or Existing Businesses, Personnel Records, Changing Ownerships, and how to Present Your Case for a term loan. The list goes on and on. We have an order card for you if you would like one.

The Ministry of Tourism has an excellent work book for tourist operators called Planning for Profit which takes you through the steps of market research, identifying objectives and markets, formulating your plan and monitoring it. They also have books on expansion planning and the business of financing, front desk business, record keeping and a guide for the development and operation of swimming pools.

The Ministry of Tourism also has financial assistance programs through the Ontario Development Corporation (O.D.C.) They either make direct loans or guarantee bank loans and provide some interest subsidies. Here again, they can be the most help to you when you are not already in trouble.

Everyone should be a promoter

There are 10,800 year round residents in Haliburton

County. That should mean that we have at least that many "promoters" of the County that are aware of its many attractions and facilities. More than ever before, the well being of our county and its economy depends on visitors returning because they enjoy the area and its residents.

We were somewhat shocked to receive a letter recently from a couple from Stratford who drove into Haliburton Village from the east during the fall colour season. Seeking information on places to stay and eat she relates, "My husband went into one of the stores and was told by a lady that she'd always lived there, but hadn't been out on the lakeshore for years but thought there would be accommodation out there." The advice they received on places to dine was also just as limited in spite of the fact that the variety of places to eat or stay at any time of year is considerable.

The awareness, or lack of it, of the lady in this store is amazing. It may be acceptable in some backwoods hick town that is not interested in the potentials of tourism, but it certainly should not be tolerated in a region that considers itself a resort area. We wonder if it has ever occurred to this lady that she very probably will lose her job in this store if visitors such as the one she failed to help should stop coming.

What can we do about this apathetic attitude? As employers we should make sure our employees have enough knowledge to be helpful - and that they are. As individuals we should be setting an example as good hosts to our visitors, and always prepared to criticize those we see doing otherwise.

At Disneyland and Disney World they have visitors fill out survey forms on what they liked most about their visit. Consistently topping the polls is the "friendly, helpful staff". It's no accident, it's planned that way. It's that important.

Christmas exhibition & sale
The Haliburton Guild of Fine Arts is presently operating their annual Christmas Exhibition and Sale at the Rails' End Gallery through to December 18. We are very fortunate here in the Highlands to be blessed with such an abundance of fine artists and crafts people and examples of work by most of them can be found now in the gallery. Any gift selected from this sale will certainly reflect a true flavour of the Haliburton Highlands to the recipient.

Wednesday, November 24, 1982

The gallery is open Tuesday to Saturday 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and to 8 p.m. on Friday. It is also open Sundays from 1 to 4 during the show.

by Ron Reid - Federation of Ontario Naturalists

At this time of year, I used to wonder who was clipping my trees, for beneath a canopy of balsam fir or cedar, the ground would be littered with fresh green boughs. The mystery was solved when the topmost branches of large cedar near my cabin began to rain down one morning. The culprit was a red squirrel, busily gnawing off the twigs that held cones for his winter food supply.

These little tree-top acrobats like the cones of spruce and pine as well. Cones are quickly collected from the ground and stowed away in "middens" in hollow logs, under fallen trees, or even underground. By spring, after a long winter of chewing, these middens are often conspicuous as piles of discarded cone shells. Red squirrels are active all year round, and in fact the first mating of the year usually takes place in the depths of February. After the first litter of young is born in early May the squirrels may mate again for a second batch in August.

Red squirrels are true northerners, preferring the coniferous woods wherever possible. This is also one of the few species that are actually brighter during the winter months. In summer, it has reddish-grey fur on the back, separated from the white belly by a black stripe. But in the cold months, the black stripe disappears, and the back fur becomes a bright reddish colour. Even so, these squirrels are more often heard than seen, as they scold intruders with long, explosive lectures, accompanied by appropriate twitches of the tail.

An individual red squirrel lays claim to a territory ranging from two to six acres.

With a wide-ranging appetite, it forages for whatever food is available - not just nuts and cones, but also mushrooms, bird eggs, meat, and even sap in the spring. With such a variety of food sources, it is little wonder that the red squirrel can withstand the perils of fox and owl, sometimes to live for a span of ten years or more.

interests). "Some people who have looked at the deal say there are no Saudis involved at all," he said. "There's a good chance it's just a series of internal transactions".

On November 9, the Minister had announced that the apartment buildings had been purchased by Saudi Arabian investors. However, he later said he was not certain of this information and that he had been relying on a conversation with a Toronto lawyer who says he represents Saudi interests.

Gary Kenney
Box 808, Minden

- March 11/82: Council passed a by-law increasing amounts paid to themselves by $2250.00 per year (total for all 5 members)
- March 25/82: Council passed a by-law giving themselves OHIP, Blue Cross, and Semi-Private Hospital Care worth $3120.00 per year (total for all 5 members)
- For the coming 3 year term this amounts to a direct cost to the taxpayers of $16,110.00.
- There was no discussion with taxpayers prior to the passage of the by-laws.

In January 1983 I will propose resolutions to:

- (A) Rescind the by-laws described above.
- (B) Form a Ratepayer Committee to discuss and formulate a "Wage/Benefit Package" for the coming term.
- (C) Adopt a procedure whereby such a committee is charged (at the beginning of each 3 year term) to resolve a "Wage/Benefit Package" for that term of office.

If we want a raise - let's ask the boss.

Huskies show they've still got what it takes

The Haliburton Huskies enjoyed a return to credibility last Saturday at the Dysart arena with a display of consistent play against Huntsville.

The team came out hitting and took control of the game early on, continually keeping the visitors off-balance. The play was tight until the Huskies tore a hole in the Huntsville rearguard and jumped ahead at 11:55 of the first period on a goal by Glen

The Canadian economy

- by Bill Scott, M.P. -

As a Member of Parliament, my office receives regularly the current statistics on the status of our economy. In the past year, these statistics have, to say the least, portrayed a very deep recessionary spiral.

In these weekly columns, I have tried to keep you informed of the actual figures on unemployment, the deficit, and government spending. It has not been a pleasant task passing on such worrisome details, but you have the right to know where we actually stand.

A detail which has been discussed a great deal in the media is the unprecedented level of bankruptcies in the first quarter of this year. For your interest, and to clarify exactly what has happened, I present the following table prepared from statistics provided by the Bankruptcy Branch of the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs.

After he gets a baby sister, Whoopsie, he learns many things and has fun and games. Well illustrated by Joanne Cole and suited for the young reader.

Juvenile Non-Fiction

Title: Big Hunters. Author: Ada and Frank Graham.

Each year swarms of insects destroy acres of food crops. At first various sprays were used to destroy some "bad" insects but had many side effects. Scientists now are described in this book as trying to find insect enemies for various "bad" insects and have been successful in many cases. A good research book for a project.

Adult Fiction

Title: The Sacrifice. Author: Pamela Ferguson.

When we meet Dmitri Mitsidis he is, at 85, the powerful and respected founder of Glendinning, the world's largest liquor empire, and the patriarch, both loved and feared, of a close-knit Greek-American clan. But there are secrets in his past that even those closest to him do not know.

When he left his native Skyros in 1907, Dmitri Mitsidis was ignorant, penniless, and virtually indentured to the padrone who had paid the passage to New York for him, his brother and his cousin, and put them to work in his shoeshine parlor and tavernas. But Dmitri was quick to learn, tenacious and fired by a will to improve the conditions of his life.

In the padrone's taverna Dmitri saw the first glimmer of prohibition, sensed the fortunes that were to be made from it and, moreover, was farsighted enough to recognize the boom that would follow its inevitable repeal.

Spanning three generations, The Sacrifice, is an epic novel of empire-building in the tradition of Hailey's Wheels and Robbin's The Betsy. And in Mitsidis himself, Pamela Ferguson has created a cunning and charismatic protagonist a hero of epic stature.

Local mares claim top prize

The S.G. Nesbitt farm of Minden walked away with top honours last week at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

The farm swept the top two places in the Belgian horse competition. Nesbitt's Lady Jennifer was selected senior champion and grand champion while Nesbitt's Misty River Lynne was named reserve senior champion and reserve grand champion.

Both horses took first place in their classes to claim the top titles. They were also undefeated as the team of registered mares in 1982.

Owner Sinc Nesbitt was also showing a number of other Belgians during the Royal. He placed second in the brood mare class with his horse, Nesbitt's Misty River Margaret; third place in the light draught team; first place in the progeny class (two animals from the same mare); and second in the get of sire class (three animals from the same stallion).

All of the winning horses were Minden born and raised as they trace their blood lines back to their great grandmother, Conqueror's Silver Lady. In 1967 Conqueror's Silver Lady was named grand champion Belgian mare and her filly foal was reserve grand champion.

Conqueror's Silver Lady may have retired from the show ring, but her influence will continue to be felt. At age 23 she is in foal once again.

Owner Sinc Nesbitt noted

that many area neighbours and friends had helped with the competition and preparation of the horses during the past year. Included in the list were Verne and Marlin Gartshore, John and Sue Stephens, Hartley and Janet Newell, Eddie Freitag and Dave Sisson.

Report offered on county forests

The last session of the present county council November 10 was the forum for a report by Stanhope deputy reeve Elgin Stouffer, chairman of the Haliburton County Forest Management Committee. He informed members of the new private owners forestry association and reviewed some statistics on Haliburton county forests. He exhorted municipalities to obtain and circulate the brochure on forest management the county has acquired.

The Haliburton County Forest Owners' Association was formed as a result of the concern beginning to manifest itself about the quality of forest land in the county. The new association will be able to capitalize on some of the $400 million the federal government is committing to their forestry program. The money is also a small part of the massive federal government attempt to create jobs.

Stouffer said that Haliburton was fortunate to contain a rare and profitable mixture of trees. The hardwood forest prevalent in Haliburton County is included in a small five to ten per cent segment of Canada's forest land. He also said that forest production in the county would be doubled adding as much as $20 million to the local economy. Council recommended forest management committee members attend the next association meeting slated for November 22.

HCSA executive

The Haliburton County Snowmobile Association (HCSA) elected its board of directors November 13 and chose their new executive November 20 upon their return to the Minden Fire Hall. About 60 people were present for the second meeting.

Returning as president is Tom Prentice of Minden. Barry Stewart has been elected vice-president, Jan Tedford secretary and Leroy Lichty, treasurer.

Directors of the club include: Doug Tedford, Guard Campbell, Norm Gemmell, Larry McKnight, Jack Snell, Tom Moffatt, Bob Valentine, Wes Lytle, Ken Lewis and Mark Lester.

The club's directors at large are: Brian Hamilton, Dale McDonald, Larry Wilford, Brian Hunter, William Campbell and Ross Lindsay.

Society elects new executive

The Minden Agricultural Society elected a new executive at its annual meeting November 17 in Minden.

Wayne Cox will serve as president of the organization for another term, this being his second year in the post. Others on the executive include, first vice president Susan Stephens, second vice president Bess Cox, treasurer Helen Johnson and secretary Jeunne Lacey.

All of last year's directors and those in attendance at the meeting Wednesday were named directors of the organization. However, since a number of the former directors had not been contacted as to whether they will stand for office, a complete list will not be available for several weeks.

In his annual report to the membership, president Wayne Cox noted that the 1982 edition of the Haliburton County Fair was a financial success. He pointed out that bleachers had been constructed for the outdoor stage and electricity installed, via underground cable, to the stage and to a distribution point in the centre of the field.

He said there was a big improvement in moving the light horse show ring from behind the row of trees, where it had been located for a number of years, to an area adjacent to the main ring. He indicated this appeared to attract more spectators.

Cox told the members that a tent had been purchased and would be used during the 1983 fair and suggested that construction of a permanent food booth and a roof for the stage be 1983 projects.

The 1983 fair dates were also set at August 20 and 21, the third weekend of the month.

The membership also agreed with the suggestion that the position of secretary-treasurer be split into two positions with the individuals sharing the increased honourarium. Helen Johnson, who has held the dual post for the past number of years told the meeting the work load was becoming too heavy. Jeunne Lacey was elected to the post of secretary.

The first meeting of the new board will be held the third Wednesday in January when planning for the 1983 fall fair will begin.

Agricultural Society president Wayne Cox, poses with his executive following election Wednesday evening at Minden municipal office. Cox told the meeting that the 1982 edition of the Fall Fair was a financial success and outlined the plans for this year's event. Other members of the executive, from the left, Jeunne Lacey, secretary, Bess Cox second vice-president, Wayne Cox, first vice-president Susan Stephens and treasurer, Helen Johnston.

122 persons attended the workshop held at the PineStone Inn which dealt with physical, mental and spiritual health, on October 29 under the auspices of the Haliburton County Home Support Services and with funding from New Horizons.

About 20 students from the high school, enrolled in the Family Studies course, participated in the program which included a noon dinner.

Special speakers included:

Dr. Joy Ballard, Wilberforce; Paul Tuttle, Oshawa; Wolfgang Pusztay, Bancroft; and Rev. Dr. Bob Clark, Inverary. Out of town guests included: Alan Cavell from the Ministry of Community and Social Services, Marlis Lindsay from New Horizons and Julia Clark, Inverary.

Barb Pierce, Haliburton, divided the meeting into 6 discussion groups to discuss the effects of isolation, communication, prevention and early detection and volunteers and how we can better serve those experiencing physical, mental or spiritual health problems.

Doris McCann was given a rousing ovation when Jack Bassett advised the audience that she had been chosen 1982's Highlander of the Year by the Chamber of Commerce for her work in founding the Haliburton County Home Support Services.

Executive elected

- submitted -

The Archie Stouffer Home & School Association elected a new executive at the November 10 general meeting.

Faye Maddock is the new president. Caryl Douglas vice-president, Rita Cavanaugh secretary, Rozeanne Hynard treasurer, Mary McKelvey public relations, Nancy Garbutt meal program chairman, Marianne Helsby membership chairman.

The hot dog lunch program was discussed and it was decided that we would go ahead with this fund raising project again, provided a few more volunteers can be secured.

If you can help with one or more hot dog lunches, please let us know. The money from this venture has funded a musician, a play, playground equipment, and a number of other school projects.

W.I. November meeting

Mrs. L. Cox presided at the November 17 meeting of the Minden Women's Institute at the Library Cultural Centre common room. She welcomed us all and after the usual opening, eighteen members and one guest replied to the roll call.

Mrs. W. Moore gave her report of 15 cards sent since the last meeting and collections for card fund and Pennies for Friendship were taken. A 'Thank You' note was read from the R. Kirkwoods and included a donation.

There was some discussion on mileage. Drivers are to receive 25¢ per mile.

Mrs. D. Berry reported on Leaders' Course and said the first night for this was November 22 at United Church Hall at 7 o'clock and she hoped we would get as much out of it as she and Mrs. Wilson had done. Mrs. Cox read a list of requirements for this course, for those who are taking it.

Mrs. H. Stevens, convenor, gave an interesting paper on egg producing. This gave us some idea of how some people are so successful at poultry farming. We all joined in applause for an excellent paper.

Mrs. L. Cox thanked all the members who had participated in Victoria East District Craft Day and also those who helped on our afternoon at Hyland Crest.

The president had been our delegate to area convention and she gave a brief and interesting report. One item was that our district had full quota of delegates present. She concluded by reading some mottoes.

The meeting adjourned and

Mrs. Moore took over as auctioneer for the plants and articles which had been for the roll call and over $8 was taken in, and we had some fun on the bidding. Lunch was served by the members. The next meeting will be at United Church Hall Wednesday, December 15 at 2 with usual exchange of gifts at price $1 and also Secret Pal gifts may be given out here.

Home wins award Training centre hires co-ordinator

Hyland Crest Home for the Aged has received the Ontario Hospital Association's Accident Prevention Achievement Award for the year ending December 31, 1981.

The award is presented by the Association's Hospital Occupational Health and Safety Services (H.O.H.S.S.), to the health care facilities with the lowest frequency of lost time injuries among its staff.

This is the Home's second award, they previously received the award in 1980.

"Hospitals and other health care facilities are classified in five different categories, based on firm type and hours worked annually. Awards are presented each year to those facilities in the province with the best safety records," says Doug Callan, O.H.A.'s Assistant Executive Director, H.O.H.S.S.

"Of the 171 hospitals and 87 other health care facilities in Ontario participating, 35 have earned the award this year. All hospitals and other health care facilities in the province are eligible to receive the award."

Chairman of the Committee of Management of Hyland Crest Home, Dysart Reeve Murray Fearrey said, "I would like to congratulate all the Home's staff on their earning of the award. An effective accident prevention program can only be achieved with the co-operation of all staff members, and it's up to each individual to ensure his own safety and the safety of those around him."

"The staff of Hyland Crest have demonstrated great responsibility, both individually and collectively, in earning this award. On behalf of the residents, the community and the Committee of Management I would like to add my personal thanks and congratulations."

The Haliburton Highlands is another step closer to having a hospitality training centre established in the area. According to an announcement last week from the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce a program development officer has been hired to oversee the creation of a school curriculum. Susan Watkins was named to the post by the Haliburton Highlands Hospitality Training Committee.

Watkins will be responsible for establishing the school's budget, recommending the facilities to be used and the staff to be required for the centre.

The program is funded through the federal government's LEAP (Local Assistance Employment Program) grant scheme, with $50,000 being allotted to the development stage.

The purpose of the facility will be to train staff for such positions as waitress, waiters, cooks' helpers, bartenders and housekeeping personnel. While community colleges have courses for more senior positions in the hospitality industry, there are no programs for this level, except on-the-job training. It is hoped the school, when it is established will help fill that void.

Watkins has just recently completed a project for the tourism courses at Georgian College in Barrie.

The development office will be located at the Lakeview Centre in Haliburton.

Did You Know?

Question: At Christmas time there is such a bewildering array of toys in the stores. What kind of toys would you choose for children up to three years of age?

Answer: For infants less than a year old, playthings that can be grasped, squeezed and put in the mouth are the rule.

Toddlers one to two years old like rubber toys, to drag around or take to the bath. Pull and push toys or a set of smooth building blocks are also very popular with this age group.

Two to three year olds need riding toys to climb on and off. As co-ordination improves, the child will enjoy tricycles, swings and things to climb. Other toys include building blocks, cooking sets, toy dishes and furniture, finger prints and play dough. They provide an outlet for the young child's imagination.

In 1970, Consumer & Corporate Affairs Canada developed special regulations under the Hazardous Product Act, making toys sold in Canada as safe as possible.

A recommended source of information about toy buying for children is the Toy Report, available from the Canadian Toy Testing Council, P.O. Box 6014 - Station J, Ottawa, Ontario, K2A 1T1. Cost $3.50.

Do you have a question: Do you need application forms for: The Canada Home Renovation Plan, The Ontario Renter-Buy Programme, The Canada Home Ownership Stimulation Plan: They are available at the Haliburton County Information Centre, Drag River Municipal Bldg., Haliburton. Pick them up or call 457-2733. We will be happy to mail them to you.

ARTHUR

From the furrow

- by Ernest Hills -

The November general meeting of the Haliburton County Farmers Association was one of the best attended of the past year. Once again hosted by the president, Ray Welch, association members met in the Welch barn to witness a demonstration of the use of implants and the application of spot-on upon some of Ray's calves. Later we were graciously welcomed into the Welch household for coffee and further discussion.

Roger Osborne was on hand to demonstrate the techniques for implanting calves, as well as to discuss relevant data concerning the use of the implants. Mr. Osborne is the Ontario representative for Brae Laboratories, who manufacture Ralgrow implants. The implant itself is a chemical compound which acts as a stimulant upon the calf's pituitary gland. Ralgrow fact-sheets claim that one implant in combination with good stock management can mean an average increase of twenty pounds of beef per head.

Purists of the 'organic' persuasion may find objection, but many of the cattlemen in attendance could not fault the economics involved.

Also on hand for the meeting was Rick Beuckert from Cutter Animal Health Clinic, Guelph, who demonstrated the proper (and exacting) application of spot-on. Spot-on is a systemic used to rid cattle of warble grubs, lice and other blood-sucking parasites that affect the health and productivity of livestock.

Of particular note was what I think of as the 'dandelion syndrome', whereby the effectiveness of a control program can only be measured by the number of people participating. If you spend time and money attempting to control the weeds on your front lawn, while your neighbour does not, you are fighting a losing battle. Similarly with warble flies, their control and elimination depends upon everyone with stock co-operating in the program.

This meeting will be followed-up by Ray Welch with a report to the association on how his yearling calves fared as part of a comparison between those receiving the implant and those of comparable size and age which did not. The contest involving the estimating of a particular calf's weight was jointly won by association members Tim Casey and Wayne Cox, who accurately guessed the beast's weight. The prize was an implant gun, donated by Ralgrow. A suggestion from the floor in determining an ultimate winner included a duel at three paces with implant gun. Ouch!

MNR policy

In conjunction with my last column, and the 'land use strategy' as proposed by the Ministry of Natural Resources, before we, as the agricultural community, permit the reforestation of vacant farmland, or bow to proposed tax incentives for reforestation, let's take another look!

A world food shortage looms before us, and pine tree soup is not likely to be a widely accepted cuisine. Perhaps we should be considering something in the nature of an agricultural land use co-operative, for both interested private land owners and cleared Crown land, where such land would be made available on a long-term lease basis to interested farmers, at nominal rents.

Contrary to some notions in the Ministry's draft land use strategy, there are several examples within our association where poor farmland has been brought-up to productive standards with proper, and long term applications of lime and fertilizer.

I have no knowledge whether such a plan has any practical application, or support, among area farmers, however I'd be pleased to hear your thoughts on the subject. I really believe it is something we should give more careful scrutiny.

Goats

An item of some excitement is the efforts of Sharron Greer to form a local goat-keepers association. Such a group would meet to discuss items of interest to those of you who keep goats. Topics may range from health and maintenance of your herd; registration of purebred stock and breeding to up-grade your present animals; marketing goat products, be they dairy produce or meat.

Sharron Greer owns and operates Maple Hill Farm, where she and her husband Roy keep registered nubian and alpine goats. As part of her interest in up-grading area goat herds she is presently offering registered buck service at nominal rates.

In conjunction with the establishment of the new goat association a raffle will be held for new members, for which prizes of registered stock will be presented. Sharron Greer's enthusiasm for goats is contagious. If you are interested in joining in the meetings, would like more information, or would just like to discuss goats, give Sharron a call at 286-1073.

Doris took us in the bus to Minden Library Cultural Centre to witness the dedication, and unveiling of the new county cairn, erected in memory of those who gave their lives in both World Wars. A real impressive service. Everyone did his part so well, and wasn't one bit nervous.

The Harold Thompsons have gone to Saskatchewan to be with their family until after the Christmas holidays. So we had no one to play for us for the service Sunday. Rev. Burgess spoke on the twenty-first chapter of Revelation. Now the book of Revelation is hard to understand. But the way Rev. Burgess explained it to us, was quite grand.

Lynda stayed and showed us three movies Monday night. "Gold Wood", "Tara's Model Garden" and "Moon March", - what a sight.

Tuesday morning's service in the Chapel this lovely November day, was taken by our United Church minister, who lives just across the way. Barbara came to sing, and Agnes to play. Rev. Westhaver spoke on the life of the man who composed the hymn, "What A Friend We Have In Jesus" - a real interesting service.

One day we were entertained down in the auditorium by Mrs. Corby's great-grandson, rolling the balls around the floor. He sure had a lot of fun.

We have Herbert Shorter back again after undergoing surgery. His wife is wearing a happy smile, with her husband she can be.

We have Tammy Alton for a while to help wait on the tables. She is doing a real nice job, and seems to be quite able.

Tuesday night is music night. The Watson-Smith came to entertain - played us lively music. We look forward to them coming again.

A word about the cleaners, who keep this place shining. They work day after day, you don't hear any whining. They dust, polish, clean, and they scrub - stop at lunch time for a quick bite of grub. A few minutes rest and then they are up and at it again.

Down at fun and fitness we have a lot of fun. The game we played Wednesday morning, Lola Prentice won.

It is nice to have Nurse Griffin back again, after a month's holiday. She surely was missed around this place while she was away.

Sorry to report Ida Schell is in hospital. We hope she will soon be back again, fit as a fiddle.

Wednesday night is games night here. Ada Alcorn and I played euchre against Lisa Raby, and Penfold Bob. Each side won a game, and was a real good job.

Thursday afternoon the R.C. ladies from Haliburton brought in a tasty lunch, this nice November day. Served it out so lovely, on little T.V. trays.

Millie Wood made oatmeal muffins for our lunch Wednesday night. Although she had never tried them before, they turned out just right.

At a meeting Doris told us that we had quite a lot of money in the safe which should be in the bank, but we would have to have a special name. The bank cannot accept it under the name of Hyland Crest. So I said, (with a little grin), why not call ourselves "The Hyland Flingers". Mary Oliver said "That sounds too Scottish to me." So you see, you just can't win.

Thursday night, Tom Prentice and Marg Young of the Kinsman Club, came up from Minden town. Put on a bingo for us - they seldom let us down.

Grace Coburn, and Fred Ballard came this Friday afternoon to entertain us for a while, with songs and organ tunes.

The ladies from the craft room have gathered up two bundles of socks, mitts, toques, etc. One bundle has been donated to the Salvation Army in Haliburton, and one bundle to the Kinsmen at Minden, as contributions to their Christmas baskets.

We had our party Friday night of cheese and wine. The Fenelon Gals came along and entertained us fine. To these talented ladies, all over sixty-five, we take off our hats. It must take a lot of practise to put on a show like that. We say "Thank You" for a job well done. And the flower wagon brought sixty-three dollars - and Mary Hamilton won.

Just another month till Christmas. You know, the best present to give your folks, would be to be good, pick up your clothes and toys after you've finished with them. It would probably shock your parents all to pieces, if you acted so good for a whole month.
